3 Dimensional Wealth Earns 'Seal of Approval'

-- Financial Planner Integrates Biblical Principles with 'Total Wealth' Management

LOCUST VALLEY, NY, Jan. 25, 2006 /Christian Wire Service/ -- When we think of the word wealth, it's only natural to envision dollar signs and our hands to rub together gluttonously. But what if someone were to redefine those "natural" responses to the word wealth by changing the very meaning of the word? "Roey" Diefendorf has redefined our greed-induced concept of wealth in 3 Dimensional Wealth: A Radically Sane Perspective on Total Wealth Management.

The book, 3 Dimensional Wealth was recently added to the inventory list of the Spring Arbor Christian Book Distributors Inc., an Ingram Book Company. Spring Arbor Distributors has been serving Christian retailers for over 27 years. They carry over 700 Christian publishers & suppliers.

A fourth-generation family financial planner, Diefendorf explains that wealth is comprised of who you are (personal wealth), what you have (financial wealth), and how you can make a difference (social wealth). As he says, "Society tells us to spend, save, and give - in that order. We ask people to give, save, then spend for a richer, deeper life." Transitioning your thinking from a one-dimension financial perspective to three-dimensions can help you achieve a life with greater significance. To Diefendorf, money is a way to find a meaningful existence instead of an existence full of "stuff."

A strong believer in his own philosophy, Diefendorf hopes to instill these key concepts of money in his own children and the next generation of consumers and advisors. In addition to being an author, he is the founder of 3 Dimensional Wealth International, an organization which provides a specialized curriculum with a professional designation for established financial professionals. Upon successful completion, candidates earn the Certified 3 Dimensional Wealth Practitioner designation (C3DWP).
