A Book Review by Janet Luhrs

You know, since I'm in the communications business, I get a lot of information passed along to me, such as books to read, quotes to share, and articles to research. But only a few of these things stand out—and fewer still are worth passing on to you.

However, two items recently came along that stirred my soul and inspired me to share them with you.

One is a talk given by Rabbi Ted Falcon; a friend of mine who attends his services sent it to me. The other is a book I received to review titled 3 Dimensional Wealth, by Monroe M. Diefendorf, Jr., and Robert Sterling Madden. I really love both of these, as they work perfectly together.
